

Directions for questions 1 to 4: The sentences given in each of the following questions, when properly sequenced, form a coherent paragraph. Each sentence is indicated with a number. Choose the most logical order of sentences that constructs a coherent paragraph and mark the correct sequence in the box provided below each question.

1. Such initiatives have immense potential to shape children into mindful citizens and eaters.
2. Children can see up close just how much work it is to grow fruits and vegetables.
3. It's a chance to learn what varieties will be growing next year, how weather affects our crops, and what kinds of soils and technology farmers are using.
4. Not every school can connect kids to gardens, but we can all be involved in educating younger generations about food, where it comes from, how to cook it and why it's an important part of our heritage.
5. Many schools have started gardens to help children learn about food and how it is produced.

Solution:

The paragraph is about how children should be educated about the importance of food by connecting them with the actual production of food. Choice 5 is the ideal starter saying that many schools have started gardens to help children learn how food is produced. Choice 2 follows with the amount of work that goes in to grow fruits and vegetables. Choice 1 is next saying that such initiatives mould children into conscious eaters. Choice 4 is next explaining that even in the absence of gardens, we can educate the younger generation about food, where it comes from and its importance in our life. Choice 3 sums up saying this will also make children aware how weather, soil and technology are inter connected. Thus 52143 is the logical order of the sentences.

Directions for questions 1 to 4: The sentences given in each of the following questions, when properly sequenced, form a coherent paragraph. Each sentence is indicated with a number. Choose the most logical order of sentences that constructs a coherent paragraph and mark the correct sequence in the box provided below each question.

- ^{1.} The coal, oil, and natural gas that fuel the majority of electricity generation produce more than one-third of global greenhouse gas emissions.
- ^{2.} The world's energy systems must undergo a tremendous change.
- ^{3.} At the same time, the opportunity to shift global energy systems onto a more sustainable path has never been greater.
- ^{4.} And more than 1.3 billion people still lack access to the electricity they need to raise their standard of living.
- ^{5.} Generous subsidies continue to support fossil fuel investment, despite growing evidence that clean energy can be lower-risk and often lower-cost.

Solution:

The paragraph talks about the world energy systems and how they should be modified to reduce emissions. The perfect starter would be choice 2 talking about world systems and the change needed. Choice 1 follows with the elements used for electricity generation and how they produce more than one-third of global greenhouse gas emissions. Choice 5 is next talking about generous subsidies for fossil fuel investment, though clean energy can be got at lower risk and lower cost. Choice 4 follows talking about the 1.3 billion people who still do not have electricity in their lives. Choice 3 sums up saying that there is a great opportunity to shift global energy systems to a more sustainable path. Thus 21543 is the logical order of the sentences.

- ^{1.} Automation has withdrawn men from work.
- ^{2.} It has affected the people of the backward countries the most, where the population keeps increasing.
- ^{3.} Scientific development has affected the workers the most.
- ^{4.} It has resulted in large-scale unemployment.

Solution:

Scientific development has resulted in automation and so sentence '3' which introduces the idea is followed by sentence '1'. The ill-effect of automation is unemployment and this idea follows in sentence '4' which forms the next sentence. Sentence '2' concludes the idea given in the passage saying who are the people or countries who are affected the most due to this scientific development.

- ^{1.} Goods are stacked in a way peculiar to the northeast region and the similarity in the products on display is unmistakable.
- ^{2.} The traditional Burmese dress is worn just the way it is in the northeast and the street food and traditional food items of both the regions bear a close resemblance too.
- ^{3.} Walking around the Bogyoke Aung San Market in Yangon gives one a personal sense of the cultural affinity between Myanmar and northeast India.
- ^{4.} The saying that southeast Asia begins in northeast India takes credence.
- ^{5.} Every now and then one can hear people speaking in Mizo or some other common language.

Solution:

Statement 3 opens the para by talking about the sense of cultural affinity which one experiences as one walks around the Bag Yoke Aung San market in Yangon. Statements (1), (5) and (2), in that order, follow (3) by elaborating on the cultural similarities that exist between Myanmar and north east India. Statement (4), which sums up what is stated in the preceding statements, is the best conclusion of the para. Hence 31524 is the correct sequence of sentences. Ans : (31524)

Directions for questions 5 and 6: There are two blanks in each of the following sentences.

From the pairs of words given below each sentence, choose the pair that fills the blanks most appropriately.

An _____ boldness looked out from her burning eyes, and their lids drew close together with a _____ and encouraging look.

☐ a) infernal . . . lascivious (Correct Answer - ✓)

☒ b) eclectic . . . licentious (Your answer - ✗)

☐ c) importune . . . libidinous

Solution:

The sentence refers to the 'sumptuous' or 'extravagant' expenses of the lady, which are obviously beyond her means, but she manages to meet her expenses. Thus, (C) is correct.
Choice (C)

Directions for question 7: The following question has a paragraph from which the last sentence has been omitted. From the given options, choose the one that completes the paragraph in the most appropriate way.

It is commonplace to note that women tend to have a low status and little autonomy over much of Indian society. This is reflected in many distressing features that have persisted and even intensified in recent years despite all the talk of modernisation: the low and falling rates of female participation in recognised employment; adverse child sex ratios that appear to be even worse among more well-off groups; and increases in recorded cases of violence against women. But there is one very startling feature that gets relatively little attention: the continuing prevalence of child marriage across most parts of the country. According to Census data, the number of girls under the age of 18 years who were found to be married actually increased between 2001 and 2011, from 5.05 million to 5.14 million girls. _____

- ☐ a) This backward practice, which has been illegal for so long appears resistant to both legal and policy-related efforts to ban it.
- ☐ b) This is a continuing expression of the subjugation and oppression of women, which denies them agency over some of the most significant features of their lives.
- ☐ c) Girls are pushed into marital relationships, typically denying them education and the possibilities of outside employment even into their future.
- ☒ d) Obviously, this speaks volumes for the lack of seriousness in the implementation of the law preventing the marriage of girls below 18 years. (Your answer - ✓)

Directions for question 8: There are two blanks in the following sentence. From the pairs of words given below the sentence, choose the pair that fills the blanks most appropriately.

Solution:

The expression 'hold the court' is incorrect in statement D. The correction is 'hold court'. To hold court with somebody is to entertain people by telling them interesting or funny things.
Choice (D)

Directions for questions 10 to 12: Each of the following questions presents 4 statements of which 3, when placed in appropriate order would form a contextually complete paragraph. Pick the statement that is not part of that context and mark the number corresponding with it in the box provided below each question.

1. The New York Times editorialized that the president's proposed changes "only tinker around the edges" of our "abusive" surveillance programmes.
2. This marks the end of a blatantly unconstitutional practice.
3. The proposals will not fundamentally remake the surveillance state, but it is pretty remarkable that the president announced, without absolutely being forced to, a series of steps that relinquish some degree of executive power.
4. Everyone is unimpressed by the measures Barack Obama has announced to bring a little ray of transparency to America's surveillance programs.

Solution:

The passage talks about the measures announced by Barack Obama. Statement 4 is the only possible opening sentence as it states a fact. Statement 1 follows as it states an example to show how people are 'unimpressed.' Statement 3 concludes, giving the significance of the proposals. 4, 1, 3 is the right order. No other statement suggests that the proposals could mark the 'end' of a practice, so statement 2 is the odd one.

Directions for questions 14 and 15: The following questions have a paragraph from which the last sentence has been deleted. From the given options, choose the one that completes the paragraph in the most appropriate way.

At 16, Malala Yousafzai has done what many human rights campaigners can only dream of. She's cut through the jargon, the muddled rhetoric and unfortunate bureaucracy that can, sadly, so often be associated with a 'good cause', and managed to get people everywhere talking about one of the biggest issues facing young girls worldwide: their right to education. Malala may not have won a Nobel Peace Prize, but it doesn't really matter. The OPCW, the body overseeing destruction of Syria's chemical weapons gained the prize, disappointing many who believed Malala was a firm favourite to win. But Malala doesn't need a prize to confirm her as a heroine.

- ☐ a) The world celebrates Malala's achievements by focussing on girls' education on United Nations' Day of the Girl, this year.
- ☐ b) We needn't be disappointed; her nomination itself was a strong message.
- ☒ c) She is already an inspiration for millions of children who would relish the chance to go to school. (Your answer - ✓)
- ☐ d) We needn't be disappointed; she is young and has a life time to achieve.

Professor Sherman doesn't just want to understand the biological causes of violent crime: his aim is to find more humane and effective ways to prevent it. Some of his work focuses on the facilitation of better brain functioning in an offender. This might be simpler than it sounds. In an experiment conducted in 2002 by Bernard Gosh of the University of Oxford, prisoners convicted of violent offences were fed fish-oil pills, a source of omega – 3 fatty acids critical for brain functioning.

- ☐ a) Among those who took it, the rate of violent behavior went up significantly.
- ☒ b) Among those who took it, the rate of offending in prison showed a significant decline. (Your answer - ✓)
- ☐ c) Among those who took it, there was a lack of emotional component to their moral decision - making process.
- ☐ d) Among those who took it were psychopaths who did not know right from wrong.

1. By deleting bad memory cells in mice, scientists have given us hope for a better world.
2. Experts opined that, only a handful of brain cells retained bad memories and successfully deleted them in mice.
3. Scientists have been successful in deleting the handful of bad or fear causing brain cells in mice.
4. Though the brain has millions of cells, scientists have identified the bad memory cells in mice and deleted them.

Solution:

The main points here are:

- (1) The handful of brain cells connected with bad memory or fear.
- (2) This has been successfully done on mice.

These are crisply captured in choice 3 which is the right answer. Choice 1 has gone many miles ahead to dream of a better world and can be ignored. Choice 2 is a little elaborate and can be ignored. Choice 4 is just like a statement making the great discovery sound like a day to day happening and can be ignored.

Directions for questions 19 and 20: In each question, there are four sentences. Each sentence has pairs of words/ phrases that are italicized and highlighted. From the italicized and highlighted word(s)/phrase (s), select the most appropriate word(s)/phrase(s) to form correct sentences. Then from the given options choose the best one.

Human history become (a)/ becomes (b) more and more a race (a)/ raise (b) between education and catastrophe.

A moment's sight (a) / insight (b) is sometimes worth a life's experience.

The only thing worse (a) / worst (b) than a man you can't control is a man you can.

Friendship is certainly the finest balm for the pangs (a)/ fangs (b) of disappointed love.

☐ a) bbaab

☐ b) babaa (Correct Answer - ✓)

☒ c) aabaa (Your answer - ✗)

☐ d) babab

Solution:

Raise means lift or elevate. We are talking about something between education and catastrophe which obviously has to be a competition or a race (a). The subject human history is in singular and hence the verb should be in singular i.e. becomes (b). In the second sentence, sight is simple vision whereas insight (b) is an intuition or perception which is worth a life's experience. 'Insight' is more appropriate in the given sentence. In sentence three we have the conjunction 'than' indicating that the adjective bad should be in the comparative degree 'worse' (a). In the fourth sentence, 'fangs' means a curved or sharp tooth- like the fangs of a snake whereas, pangs (a) means pain or painful emotion which a disappointed love can give. Thus babaa are the right options for the sentences making choice B the right answer.

Choice (B)
